3 versions at once, Clarissa cowan score, Gorma singapore gorey.U.S. Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew warns the gap between the rich and poor will widen in the coming years. The widening gap between rich and poor is the result of higher income inequality, which is on the rise across all income levels. The richest 10 percent of Americans have increased their share of income from 34.6 percent in 1989 to 39.7 percent in 2013. The middle class has suffered the most: the share of middle-class income has fallen from 47.6 percent to 45.5 percent in the same time period. The widening of the income gap is more than a social problem. According to a recent report from the Federal Reserve, over the next four years the income gap between the poor and the rich will actually expand by $122 billion. That $122 billion means more money for the richest 10 percent and less for the poorest 10 percent of Americans. It's a problem because the poor, who tend to have fewer economic assets, are less able to withstand the effects of a sudden economic shock like a layoff or a sudden drop in the value of their home. The widening income gap is also a fiscal problem. It means less revenue for the government. In fiscal 2013, taxes generated about $2.7 trillion in revenue. The $122 billion in income inequality that's projected to occur over the next four years would reduce government revenues by about $44 billion. This is a problem for public finances because the government relies on revenues to pay for public investments like roads and public works, as well as programs that benefit the poor like Social Security and Medicare.Item()); return result; } if (other.getOldOwnerId()!= null) { result.setOldOwnerId(new Long(other.getOldOwnerId())); } if (other.getLatestInstanceJobId()!= null) { result.setLatestInstanceJobId(new Long(other.getLatestInstanceJobId())); } if (other.getJobGroupId)!=
